

The Kiss

One day heaven and earth stood still
So the gods could watch

As two star crossed lovers embraced
In a passionate kiss
Which lasted for days

As Athena herself
Envied the passion
Of their embrace

A kiss in which they could feel
The passion racing
Through their lips
And the pounding in their chests

With each embrace
The two drew deeper
Into ecstasy

And to this day
You can look in their eyes

And see the long, hot, wet, passionate kiss
That lasted for days

And the love
That created a memory so strong
With feelings so deep
That their love will forever be

As will be the kiss
That excited their very being

And even the gods wept
As to the fate of these two lovers

For they were never together again
But can never forget
The passion and love that was

The love that few people get to know
The love that comes
But once in a lifetime

The love we all seek
And so few find

Was theirs
But was not to be

